

Quadruplets No Blessing.
New Prairie Schooners.
Those High Wages.
Home Brew Is Poison.
By ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright, 1912.)

President Harding, kind to everybody, congratulates the father and mother of quadruplets, one named Warren Harding. The world in general is to be congratulated on the fact that quadruplets are rare. If human beings had young ones as the mice do, and if they lived, the earth would have been hopelessly overpopulated long ago, and men now would be hunting and eating each other for lack of other food. The higher the type the fewer the births. The oyster has millions of young ones in a year—the elephant one in two years.

Many families from New York will soon start for Idaho, traveling in 128 automobiles, with trailers behind, and sleeping in the trailers. That is an improvement on the old prairie schooners—and interesting to railroad managers. One hundred and twenty-eight automobiles will carry many "pioneers" at a considerable saving on railroad rates. Each family will have a farm and each family will take along three thousand dollars, not a bad immigration for Idaho.

Fathers and mothers in the expedition say they want their children to grow up on the earth, not on paved city streets.

You have heard of high wages for mechanics building the houses much needed. You have heard that wages must be reduced to a reasonable level. Did you ever hear that wages have really made the building of houses so expensive? Investigation in New York reveals the facts. Gentlemen builders, by a gentlemen's agreement, when they paid a workman a dollar an hour, charged the owner of the building three dollars an hour, sometimes more. This made the building expensive, made the building gentlemen very prosperous, and made it easy to point to mechanics as the cause of all the trouble. Add the gentlemen's agreement to the public on building material prices and you learn that mechanics had little to do with it.

This is the housing situation, according to Mr. Hoover. He is short 1,200,000 homes. Building now does not seem to make up for loss by fire and deterioration. Mr. Hoover says he has expert working and has a plan that will solve the problem. More power to him. He also says that building operations in the United States waste every year enough building materials to build the pyramids on the Nile several times over. Every operation in the United States wastes material, from housekeeping to railroad building. Efficiency in waste is extraordinary. That is why other countries are getting the world's trade.

Dr. Wiley knows all about food and says "home brew" is poor and dangerous. Any beer not made scientifically is poisonous. That is bad news for a nation like the man in the gambling house. Told that the proprietor was a cheat, "Why did you tell me?" he asked. "It's the only gambling house in town."

Home brew is the only brew in town.

From today, if you get married in Wyoming, you must have a doctor's certificate testifying to your physical soundness. It is probably a good law. But you wonder that the world has got along so well and so long without it. The difficult question is, "What will the men do to whom licenses are refused?"

Four "moderate" Socialist deputies want the French government to issue 150,000,000,000 in French paper francs, the "money" to be used for reconstruction, etc. The trouble is that the paper francs wouldn't be "money." It is difficult for the average person to understand it, but that seems to be the case. After such an issue of imitation money, the franc now worth 8 cents, would drop to 4, 5 or 6 cents, and everybody in France would be worse off. Strange but true, that Rothschild's note is good, within his means, and that of a nation is not.

Government figures show that Germany is exporting goods at the rate of sixty five billion marks per year. Business has started there, apparently. Twenty-six per cent on that amount, collected by the allies, will give them a thousand million marks in gold yearly.

Even Russia is looking for business. Her first order for twenty-five million dollars gold has been placed with England, and the first cargo of goods from Russia to England are starting on their way. England does business while we talk platitudes about the kind of government that Russia ought to have. "Any little government that will buy and sell is the right little government for me," is the English song.

The latest report, probably false, is that Trotsky is dying of cancer. If that is so, the mysterious cancer growth will do more than the allied armies were able to do.

Russia and Germany have a trade agreement. Polish territory stands between. Russia says she will invade Poland if Poland refuses free transportation of goods across her territory.

The Bolsheviks have a simple way of going on things, no round about diplomacy.

LADY RAFFLES JAILED; LOOT FILLS BOUDOIR

Chicago Banker's Wife Poses as Maid to Steal—Husband Pleads Kleptomania.

CHICAGO, May 21.—Possessing wealth, home, husband, and children—apparently every material thing necessary to happiness—Mrs. Joseph S. Heil, wife of a rich Chicago banker and investment broker, disguised herself as a maid and by her own confession obtained employment in the homes of others that she might loot them of their treasure.

SHE'S IN JAIL NOW.

Today she sits a prisoner in jail here and smiles only a pathetic twisted smile when asked why she did it. Her husband is to attempt today to obtain her release on bond.

Meanwhile police and medical authorities seek to solve the riddle presented by Mrs. Heil, whose arrest has revealed a dual career as society woman and "raffles." The theory held by police and by physicians who have examined her is that she is a victim of kleptomania, induced by an automobile accident sustained several months ago.

"I had no reason to steal," Mrs. Heil cried piteously at detention home No. 1. "My husband is the best man in the world. He gave me everything I could possibly want. It was an obsession. I never knew I had taken things until I would see them about my home. I was ashamed after wards. I would hide the things. Those I could not hide I would explain away to my family. Then I would steal again. I could not help it."

ANSWERS "AD" FOR MAID.

The arrest of Mrs. Heil followed the theft of several thousand dollars' worth of valuables from the home of Mr. Miller. Mrs. Heil had presented herself at the Miller home on Tuesday in response to an advertisement for a maid. She presented references and was engaged.

On Thursday Mrs. Miller left the "maid" alone in the house. When she returned, clothing, jewelry, and other articles of value were gone.

William Ogden, a neighbor, remembered seeing a woman take numerous articles from the home and load them into a limousine. Yesterday Ogden and his brother saw the same car driving on Sheridan road, a fashionable thoroughfare. He recognized Mrs. Miller's "maid" and called her arrest.

In Mrs. Heil's luxurious North Shore home was found a boudoir where not even her husband was permitted to enter. In this the police found a mass of articles, which were identified by Mrs. Miller and others as having been stolen from their homes by the "maid." Pawn tickets for several articles also were found.

Heil, who was dumbfounded when he learned of his wife's arrest, said that he knew of no reason why his wife should steal. He declared he had given her $300 per month for "pin money" and in addition had given her checks for various sums at different times.

Mrs. Heil is the mother of four children, one of them a daughter who is married. It was revealed after the arrest that she is again about to become a mother.

Heil is reputed to be a millionaire.

Ladies Getting Modest
Petticoats Again
To Be the Style

NEW YORK, May 21.—Women again will wear petticoats! The short skirt and the long dress, which were the fashion of the fall trade, which they are showing, are longer than those which followed the short skirt craze. They were also wider in the waist. The long skirts mean that petticoats again can be worn.

Ina Claire, D. C. Actress, Is Hurt Packing Trunk

INA CLAIRE.

NEW YORK, May 21.—Ina Claire, noted actress, who in private life is Mrs. James Whittaker, formerly Miss Ina Fagan, of Washington, is in St. Elizabeth's Hospital, recovering from an operation. It became known today that the operation was necessary by an injury she received Wednesday.

After packing a heavy trunk, she started to lock it. The heavy spring lock rebounded and struck her in the abdomen. A physician was summoned and found an internal hemorrhage.

The operation was performed Thursday by Dr. Adolph Monro-Lesser. Other physicians in attendance are Drs. Frederickson and Coburn. Miss Claire was in a serious condition for twenty-four hours after the operation, but was much better today.

Ina and her husband had hoped to start on a belated honeymoon trip to Europe the second week in June. As a result of the accident it may be necessary to postpone the trip until July. They were married last year.

HOBOTEMPLE PLANNED HERE

James Eades Howe Says Unemployed Should Have Headquarters in Capital.

Washington in the near future may have a Hobo Temple. This is the opinion of James Eades Howe, millionaire hobo, who is in Washington today looking after the interests of the unemployed.

BOOSTS ROAD WORK.

Mr. Howe came to Washington several days ago to seek aid from Congress for the army of unemployed throughout the country. He is heading a committee from the Middle West which called upon members of Congress to ask them to put through a petition or a resolution appointing a commission to investigate the unemployment problem in the country.

The committee with Mr. Howe is composed of Miss Laura Clark, Louis F. Shea, of the Unemployed's Union of this city, and John Nevins, of this city, a writer. The committee was formed out of the International Brotherhood Welfare Association, which is popularly known as the Hobo Union. The committee held a conference at Typographical Temple last night and decided upon a plan of action.

SEEK LAWMAKERS' AID.

Today the committee called on Congressman Dyer of Missouri, and Senator Willis of Ohio and laid their plans before them and asked their co-operation.

Mr. Howe said that his committee and the organization from which it is an outgrowth, is not opposed to the American Federation of Labor, but that they thought that it was of vital importance to have in Washington some one to represent the vast army of unemployed. The unemployment problem at the present time, Mr. Howe said, is giving great concern to the entire country and while many plans were afoot to relieve their suffering that they had no representative here who could be relied upon to look after their interests alone.

NATION KNEELS AT WHITE BIER

Only Highest Officials Attend Simple Funeral, But Whole World Mourns Jurist.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES.

International News Service.

With the same lack of ostentation that marked his long and useful life, Edward Douglass White, ninth Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court, was laid to his long rest today.

The last services for the noted jurist were impressive in their simplicity, in keeping with the character of Justice White as Washington had learned to know it in the more than thirty years of his official life here.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS.

Save for the presence of the highest officials of the Government, the President, the Vice President, members of the Cabinet, Senators and Representatives, officers of the army and navy and foreign diplomats, the funeral of the late Chief Justice today might well have been that of any other Catholic citizen well beloved by his fellow men.

Only the flags drooping at half-mast in the misty May sunshine and the quiet which prevailed around Government departments and courts, closed in honor of the dead, gave mute testimony of the sorrow of officials and people alike.

One of the greatest members, one who had served the Government well for more than three decades.

FLAGS DROOP OVER WORLD.

All over the world, wherever the American flag flies today, the Government officials spoke its sorrow at the death of Justice White. American army posts from Alaska to Panama, from China to the Rhine, fired a salute of seventeen guns in his honor at 8 o'clock this morning. Navy posts and every warship on the seas which could be reached with wireless orders did likewise. In every country where the United States maintains official representation, flags hung at half-mast, and will continue to do so for thirty days.

SERVICES AT ST. MATTHEWS.

The simple services were conducted at St. Matthews' Church, just a few doors from the home of the late Justice, on Rhode Island avenue. It would not hold a tenth of those who sought admission to do final honor to the memory of the Chief Justice.

Members of the family, the higher officials of the Government and the official officials of the church, and the company who found places inside the church. Many unable to gain admission stood respectfully in the outer sunshine until the services were over.

The venerable rector of the church, the Right Rev. Monsignor Thomas S. Lee, was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. He had been a close friend and neighbor of the Chief Justice for many years. They had much in common. Chief Justice White was descended from a long line of distinguished jurists and Catholic pioneers in Louisiana.

DESCENDED FROM CARROLLTONS.

The celebrant, Monsignor Lee, like the typical Catholic life of the nearby State of Maryland, being a great grandson of Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, the last survivor of the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

The final requiem was in keeping with the simplicity of Justice White's spiritual life. Participating in the simple services were Jesuit priests from Georgetown College, one of whom said a few days ago administered the last rites of the church to the dying jurist. Thus the church's last benison was given—the last profound benison of the Chief Justice of the United States.

BURIED AT OAK HILL.

Following the conclusion of the brief services at St. Matthews' the body was taken to Oak Hill Cemetery in Georgetown for burial. Accompanying it as honorary pallbearers were the eight surviving members of the Supreme Court—Justices McKenna, Holmes, Day, Van Devanter, Pitney, McReynolds, Brandeis and Clark—three of whom had served on the bench with the dead Justice for upward of twenty years.

Others who followed the body of the distinguished jurist to its last resting place were the members of the select committees of the Senate and House, headed by Vice President Coolidge and Speaker Gillette, and the full Congressional delegation from his native State of Louisiana.

Monsignor Romano, the Apostolic delegate, was among those present at the funeral ceremonies.

SAYS CLIQUE HALTED PEACE

Financial Combine Spread Propaganda to Goad U. S. Into Conflict, Charge in House.

A special Congressional investigation of charges that a gigantic combine in 1915 and 1916 deliberately sought through propaganda to plunge the United States into the world war was demanded in a resolution introduced in the House late yesterday by Congressman Michaelson, Republican, Illinois.

MORGAN FIRM ACCUSED.

The international banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., according to the charges quoted in the resolution, had the principal interest in the combine. The accusations originally were made in the House, February 9, 1917, by former Congressman Gallaway, Democrat, Texas.

The resolution quoted substantiation of the charges by Gabriel Hanoteaux, formerly French minister of foreign affairs, and Sir Gilbert Parker, formerly in charge of British propaganda in the United States.

Michaelson proposed that these charges be thoroughly investigated by a special committee of ten members of the House. If they are found to be true, those guilty of conducting alleged propaganda that plunged the United States into the war should be punished, the resolution further provides.

The Gallaway resolution had said: "In 1915 the J. P. Morgan interests, the steel, shipping and powder interests, and their subsidiary organizations, got together to make a high in the newspaper world and employed them to select the most influential newspapers in the United States and a sufficient number of them to control generally the policy of the daily press of the United States."

TELLS OF PROPAGANDA.

Gallaway declared in the House that these men purchased control of twenty-five of the largest newspapers, and through them propaganda was conducted for preparedness, militarism, financial policies and other things of national and international character designed to draw the United States into the war.

The resolution continued: "In addition to the information and charges filed by Congressman Gallaway, Gabriel Hanoteaux, formerly minister of foreign affairs of the Republic of France, in his history of the late war, states in effect that France was ready to make peace in the latter part of the year 1914, but was dissuaded from doing so by these American interests, namely, Robert Bacon, of the financial policies and other fiscal agents for the British government; Myron T. Herrick and William G. Sharp, and that these men represented to French officials that if France would continue the war, these three men would organize a propaganda to put the United States into the war on the side of the Allies, and J. P. Morgan further states that the sum of money which was provided to goad the United States into the war was too large even for American comprehension."

STEELJACK THIEVES

GET $100,000 IN FURS

NEW YORK, May 21.—"Steeljack" robbers made away with $100,000 worth of furs from the Vogel, White & Co., loft in Thirty-sixth street.

Two men, working most of the night, lowered the furs from the eleventh story of the loft building and took their spoils out through another building, where a janitor held the door open for them.

The men raised themselves and lowered the furs, by means of pulleys and a 300-foot rope. Part of the time they hung to window ledges and once they had to cross a court bridge only by a narrow plank.

Leg Display O. K. In Zion City
Elders Too Busy Covering Naked Necks

CHICAGO, May 21.—Any reform to be effective should begin at the bottom and work up.

The Zion City elders realize this now to their dismay. Some time ago they framed an ordinance prohibiting the appearance in public of any adult woman who did not completely conceal her neck and arms. Sleeve lengths and the exact height of the dress at the neck were carefully prescribed in inches.

But the ordinance, it is realized now, is weak at its strategic points. In their concern over the shoulders and arms the city fathers appear to have neglected the legs.

Zion's women, with the perversity of their sex, have taken advantage of this loophole in the law to appear on the street in costumes that from the knees down suggest the Folies. The hokey display is such as to cause the elders to gasp and the younger men to rejoice exceedingly.

General Overseer Voliva has thundered against the skimpy skirt and has set to work some of his pet curmies, but all to no avail. The women are safe within the law.

40 AUTOS BURN AT MEIGS FIRE

Trucks Consumed as Flames Sweep Camp Garage—One-Legged Man Is Blamed.

Twenty big trucks and between fifteen and twenty passenger automobiles were destroyed by fire which razed a huge warehouse and garage on the Camp Meigs grounds at noon today.

The blaze, which was one of the most spectacular in months, was visible from all parts of Washington. The garage was recently purchased from the Government by the Home Auto Service Company and all of the destroyed machines were privately owned.

BLAZE STARTS BLAZE.

The blaze was started by the explosion of a gasoline torch operated by C. B. Linthicum, a mechanic who was working on one of the automobiles. The flame spread with appalling rapidity and within a few moments burst through the roof of the big frame structure, sending up a column of smoke and flames which was visible for miles.

Linthicum, who is a one-legged man, was alone in the building and was unable to run down the hill which surrounds the camp to turn in an alarm. He waited helplessly until a passer-by came in sight.

Meanwhile the gasoline in the fuel tanks on the automobiles and a small quantity in cans ignited violently, though there were no explosions. The flames spread to a lumber pile nearby, burning it to the ground.

BURNS AN HOUR.

The fire was finally brought under control at about 12:30, after it had been burning for an hour.

Conservative estimation placed the damage at about $150,000, this allowing but $2,000 for each of the trucks and automobiles, many of which were valued at far above this figure.

BOMB EXPLOSIONS ROCK QUEENSTOWN

City Terrorized and Property Damaged—New Riots in Dublin and Cork.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, May 21.—This city was thrown into terror early today by a series of bomb explosions. Much damage was done to business property.

DUBLIN, May 21.—Many persons were wounded in two outbreaks of violence near Cork and in this city today. Revolvers and bombs were used in the fighting near Cork, and some of the wounded are in serious condition. A military lorry containing black and tan policemen was bombed in Chappel street, this city. One policeman was seriously wounded.

SMITH BEATS LYON

1 UP, IN 19 HOLES

Russell Smith, of Waverly, defeated George S. Lyon, of Canada, in the semi-final round of the first sixteen of the Chevy Chase Club invitation golf tournament today, 1 up in 19 holes.

Frank Thompson, of Mississauga, youthful model of the tournament, will meet Smith in the final this afternoon. Thompson won his way to the final by a well-earned victory over Albert MacKenzie, of Columbia Country Club, in the semi-finals, 2 up.

Thompson had MacKenzie four down at one time, but the Columbia man, after the gamiest sort of fight, forced the Canadian to the eighteenth green for the issue.

In the third sixteen, Fraser Hale, of Chevy Chase, defeated L. S. Otell, of Raccoon, N. J., 2 up.

E. J. Baines, of Columbia, won from P. B. Waggaman, of Chevy Chase, in the fourth sixteen, 1 up, and S. H. Kramer, War Department, set down J. C. Moore, Chevy Chase, 1 up in 19 holes.

3 KILLED, MANY WOUNDED IN RIOTING AT CAIRO

LONDON, May 21.—Three persons were killed and many wounded in an outbreak of rioting by Egyptian nationalists at Cairo, said a dispatch from that city today.

TRACE BRIDE'S MURDERER BY FINGERPRINTS

Police Find Bloodstained Linen Near Crime Scene at White Station, Md.

With the discovery of two blood-stained handkerchiefs and a powder-puff within a hundred feet of the spot where twenty-year-old Mrs. Margaret E. Weber was found criminally assaulted and slain Thursday, near White Station, Md., the authorities of Prince Georges county believe they have the first tangible clue to the identity of the slayer since the murder was committed.

FIND RAILWAY TICKETS.

The articles were found within 100 feet from where the body was lying. Near the handkerchiefs were several railway tickets and a receipt for goods purchased at a Seventh street shop.

The police are of the opinion that when the murderer had wrenched the finger containing Mrs. Weber's wedding ring and diamond engagement ring from her hand, he wiped his blood-smear hands on the handkerchiefs and carried the articles deeper into the woods, where he dropped them.

A fingerprint, said to be clearly defined, on one of the articles is being investigated by Detective Sandburg, finger print expert of the Washington police force.

ARREST TWO NEGROES.

Late yesterday afternoon the police of Laurel, Md., picked up two negroes near that place and locked them up in the Hyattsville jail for investigation.

One of the negroes said he came from Richmond and the other had come from South Bend, Ind. They admitted to the police that they had been "beating" their way to Baltimore "to get work."

NEGRO SUSPECTED.

The police are paying particular attention to Robert Pinkston, twenty-three years old, the negro who said he came from South Bend. Persons near White Station said they saw a colored man answering Pinkston's description loitering in the neighborhood.

A number of wild "clues" are daily being received by Constable Thomas M. Garrison, at Hyattsville. Thus far all have failed to bring solution of the mystery nearer.

Late yesterday Deputy Sheriff
